⁴⁷ Every one who cometh unto me, who heareth my words, doing them, I shall show to you to whom he is being like.

⁴⁸ He is being like to a man building a house, this (one) who excavated and he dug, he established the foundation upon the rock: but when the flood had happened, the river beat against that house; it could not move it, because it was [being] built well. ⁴⁹ But he who heareth them, doing them not, he is being like to a man having built his house upon the earth without foundation: but immediately the river having beat against it, it fell: the fall of that house became great.

he went up into a ship and his disciples; said he to them, Let us go across the lake. And they sailed. ²³ But as they sail he was unconscious: a storm of wind came down to the lake; but they were troubled, and they were in danger. ²⁴ They came up to him, they raised him (up), saying, Master, Master, we shall perish. But he, he rose, he rebuked the wind and the wave of the water: it ceased; a calm became. ²⁵ But said he to them, Where is being your faith? VII. After these (things) was walking Jesus in [the] Galilaia; for he was not wishing to walk in [the] Iudaia, because were seeking for him the Jews to put him to death. ² But was approaching the feast of the Jews the Skēnopēgia. ³ Said they therefore to him his brothers, Remove from this place, and go into [the] Iudaia, that thy disciples also should see thy works which thou doest. ⁴ For no one is wont to work in secret, and seeketh indeed to be openly: if thou doest these (things) manifest thyself to the world. ⁵ For even his brothers were not believing him. ⁶ Said he therefore to them Jesus, My time indeed came not yet; but your time indeed sons of Abraham, ye would do the works of Abraham. ⁴⁰ Now ye seek for me to put me to death, a man who said to you the truth: this which he heard from God: Abraham did not this. ⁴¹ Ye, ye are doing the works of your father. Said they therefore to him, We, we were not begotten out of [a] fornication; one father is he who is ours, who is God. ⁴² Said Jesus therefore to them, If your father were God, ye would love me; for I, I came and I am coming from God; for I came not of myself, but (α) that (one) is he who sent me. ⁴³ Wherefore knew ye not my speech? Because it is not possible for you to hear my word. ⁴⁴ Ye, ye are out of your father the devil,

(any) one is a man of God, and doing his wish, he is wont to hear him. ³² Since (the) age (began) it was not heard that some one opened the eyes of one who was born (ΞΠ.) being blind. ³³ If this (one) had not been out of God, he would not have been able to do any work. ³⁴ They answered, saying to him, Thou wast altogether begotten in the sin, and thou (art he) who will teach us. And they cast him out. ³⁵ Jesus heard that they cast him out; and when he had found him, said he to him, Thou, thou believest the Son of the man. ³⁶ Said he, Lord, who is he that I, I should believe him? ³⁷ Said Jesus to him, Thou sawest him, and he who speaketh

Jesus, he found him for his fourth (day of) being in the tomb.

¹⁸ But Bēthania was near to Jerusalem, about fifteen stadia.

¹⁹ But many out of the Jews had come unto Martha and Maria, that they should comfort them concerning their brother.

²⁰ Martha therefore, when she had heard that Jesus (is) coming, came out to meet him; but Maria was sitting in the house.

²¹ Said Martha therefore to Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother would not have died.

²² But (Δ) now also I know, that all things which thou wilt ask from God, he will give to thee.

²³ Said Jesus to her, Thy brother will rise.

²⁴ Said Martha to him, I know that he will rise in the resurrection in the last day.

²⁵ Said Jesus to her, I am the resurrection and the life: he who believeth me, even if he

XII. 27. Jesus therefore before six days to the Paskha came to Bēthania, the place at which Lazaros was, he whom Jesus raised out of those who are dead. ² They made therefore for him a supper at that place, and Martha was ministering, but Lazaros was one of those who reclined with him.

(man), thou art not the friend of the king: every one who maketh himself king is opposing the king. ¹³ But Pilatos, when he had heard these words, brought out Jesus, he sat on (ε) the bēma, a place being called Lithostrōton, but in Hebrew, Gabbatha. ¹⁴ But it was the sixth hour of the paraskevē of the paskha. And said he to the Jews, Behold, your king! ¹⁵ But they were crying out, Take him away, take him away, crucify him. Said Pilatos to them, (Is it) that I crucify your king? Answered the chiefpriests, We have not king except the king Kaisar. ¹⁶ Then therefore he delivered him to them for to be crucified. But they, when it was written in Hebrew, in Roman, in Greek. ²¹ Were saying therefore to Pilatos the chiefpriests of the Jews, Write not it, The king of the Jews; but (α) that that (one) is he who said, I am the king of the Jews. ²² Answered Pilatos, That which I wrote I wrote. ²³ But the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garment, they made it of four parts, a part for each of the soldiers, and the coat also: but the coat was not sewn together, but (α) it was woven throughout. ²⁴ Said they therefore to one another, Let us not rend it, but (α) draw lots for it, as to whose it will be. That the scripture should be fulfilled, They divided my garments among them, and they cast lot upon my clothing. The soldiers indeed did these his disciples at (lit. upon) the sea of Tiberias: but he manifested himself thus. ² Were being together Simōn Petros and Thōmas, he who is wont to be called Didymos, and Nathanaēl, the (one) out of the Kana of [the] Galilaia, and the sons of Zebedaios, and two other out of his disciples. ³ Said he to them Simōn Petros, I shall go to catch fish. Said they to him, We come also with thee. They came out, they went up into the ship; and they caught not any in that night. ⁴ But when morning had happened, Jesus stood on the shore: knew not the disciples that it is Jesus. ⁵ Said he therefore to them Jesus, Young children, have ye any fish? They answered to him, Nay. ⁶ Said he to them, Bring the net on (the) right (side) of the ship, and ye will find some. But they, said they, We

²² Said Jesus to him, If I should wish for him to remain until I come, who art thou indeed? Follow me, thou. ²³ This word therefore came out among the brothers, that that disciple will not die: Jesus said not to him, that he will not die, but (α) if I should wish for him to remain until I come, who art thou indeed? ²⁴ This is the disciple who beareth witness concerning these (things), and he who wrote these things; and we know that true is his witness. ²⁵ But there are many other works which did Jesus, these if they should be written one (by) one, I say

THE TEXT

The text is printed continuously from the fragments, with breaks only at the chapters, except in the first chapter, where two breaks occur. Section marks and numbers are indicated in the Apparatus by § for small and P for large divisions of the text. In Matthew, Mark, and Luke the Greek numeration of the large divisions is given in Greek uncials to show that in these books the numeration of the divisions agrees with the Greek, whereas in John the numeration is given in Coptic uncials because a numeration differing from the Greek and agreeing with the Bohairic appears. In the short account of the fragments the occurrence of sectional marks will be noted. Marks occur in the earlier fragments, but numbers are not seen until a later time, and the Ammonian sections are written in only three MSS., one of which is not earlier than the ninth century; and the others, of much later date, are paper lectionaries, in the latest of which the numbers are written in a kind of cursive hand with the Arabic word for 'small' over them, and without any indication of the Eusebian canons. Square brackets in the text signify the loss of letters or words in the fragment. In constructing the text the chief guide was agreement with the so-called Neutral Text with which the earlier fragments were usually in accord. After this some importance in deciding the text was given to Western influence, which was found to be not so powerful as supposed. Frequently in the case of omission of conjunctions it was presumed that the version in its earliest form shows a survival of the old Egyptian asyndeton, and that the Greek δε was originally the connecting word before the Sahidic equivalent for kai became used. Thus only can the practice of the MSS. be explained. Greek words were always preferred to Coptic in the text as probably belonging to the earliest version, and Bohairic agreement was avoided.

THE APPARATUS

Gothic letters represent the few papyrus fragments, and Gothic cit a citation written on papyrus. Greek cursive letters are used for the bilingual fragments written in Greek and Sahidic. Ordinary small letters mark the paper fragments. Ordinary numbers stand for the parchment fragments. Lectionaries are indicated by a small l placed above the letter or number. Curved brackets mean that the fragment is imperfect in the verse, and cannot be relied upon for that verse except when specially cited among the authorities for or against a given reading. If a note of interrogation be placed within the bracket, it means that there is some imperfection of the writing, but that the reading may be regarded as certain. Elsewhere a note of interrogation implies uncertainty. Occasionally 'fr' will appear, and means a later inserted unidentified fragment probably belonging to some of those in the Register.

In the upper part of the Apparatus verse numbers are printed, and following them come the letters and numbers giving the authorities for every single verse. These authorities are arranged as far as possible according to their supposed date. The signs § and ¶ for small and large divisions are placed after the letter or number to which they belong, and if a Coptic letter, with line over it be seen, it shows the number of the large Greek or Coptic sections, and in Matthew, Mark, and Luke it will be found to correspond with the Greek uncial in the text: after this Coptic letter are placed the authorities which give it. This part of the Apparatus is devoted chiefly to orthographic phenomena and practically all the small variants of this kind are given of all the fragments, from which fact may be obtained some idea of the care and scholarship of the scribes. It may be noted here that only one MS. (73) appears to have suffered any systematic correction. When citing the authorities for a given reading the first authority in the verse list is always cited; if there are more than one other authority without brackets, the sign &c is employed to denote them, followed by the numbers within brackets, or without brackets if their text happens to be perfect in that given reading.

In the lower part of the Apparatus will be found the important variants. The reading of the text, always translated unless it be a Greek word, is followed by a square bracket, then come the Sahidic authorities, after them are the Greek MSS. taken from the editions of Tregelles and Tischendorf and indicated by the usual large capitals and numerals with the latest changes of the numerals made in the Prolegomena to Tischendorf's eighth edition of the New Testament. In ordinary cases when there are only two Greek readings, and the authorities are unequally divided, the fewer MSS. are written out and the large majority represented by &c following one MS. letter. Next come the versions: OL Old Latin with the usual letters for the MSS. within brackets, ff is for ff² and g for g¹, Vg Vulgate, Bo Bohairic followed by small capitals within brackets indicating the MSS. mentioned in the latest Oxford edition of this version, Syr Syriac followed by letters, g indicating Gwilliam's edition of the Peshitto, cs Burkitt's edition of the Curetonian and Sinaitic, j the Jerusalem lectionary and h the Harkleian form of the Syriac, Arm Armenian, Eth Ethiopic. Of these versions the Bohairic, the Peshitto, Curetonian, Sinaitic, and for John the Harkleian Syriac, the Armenian and Ethiopic have been collated by the editor for this edition: in the Armenian Zohrab's edition was used, and the latest edition of the Bible Society for the Ethiopic. Last come the patristic authorities taken from Tischendorf's apparatus. Each division of authorities is separated by a comma, the Sahidic from the Greek, the Greek from the Versions, and the Versions from the Fathers: when a semicolon occurs it is meant to combine the foregoing in relation to the following authorities.

Words in italics in the Apparatus translate the reading of the Versions. The numerals after the g of the Peshitto indicate the MSS. cited by Gwilliam: when the numeral is within brackets it means the number of MSS. which support the reading. Cit signifies a citation: when followed by a number it was given to the editor by Dr. Leipoldt and if preceded by L it was taken from the Leyden collection of fragments.

When curved brackets are used in the middle of a word the enclosed letters or words or numbers refer only to the letter immediately preceding, e.g. ⲉϣ(ⲕ ⲙⲙⲙ)ⲓ means that ⲙⲙⲙ writes ⲉⲕⲓ. Sometimes for clearness a whole syllable may have to be written, e.g. ⲧⲉϣ(ⲧⲱ̄ 70 134)ⲟⲓⲛ.

TRANSLATION

The order of the words has been kept more strictly than in the translation of the Bohairic version, and ⲁⲉ has always been translated 'but', and this word when followed by (ⲁ) renders ⲁⲗⲗⲁ. In other respects the rules of that translation have been observed with slight modification, e.g. 'when he had' for 'having'. The periphrasis for the passive has been translated as the passive whenever the Greek uses the passive; and when the frequentative form of the Coptic is used the phrase 'wont to be' represents that form where the Greek has the ordinary passive. Greek proper names if possible are preserved exactly in their own letters, e.g. Nazōraios, vol. i, p. 321, which by error is in italics, but if this is not possible, e.g. 'a Kyrenæan man', p. 333, italics are used, and all other translated Greek words borrowed by the Coptic are printed in italics.

Square brackets imply words used by the Coptic and not required by the English, while curved brackets supply words which are necessary to the English idiom.

NOTES ON THE FRAGMENTS OF MSS.

In the following remarks upon the materials of this edition the word fragment will be used and not the word manuscript, because only one complete volume is found among them; and, although no pains have been spared in identifying widely scattered leaves and pieces of leaves, some of them which are separated in the Register may belong to the same volume, while others united under a single number really form part of different volumes. Photography and careful description of fragments can do much for the work of identification, but certainty is only secured by the immediate continuation of the text upon two detached leaves.

Except when alluded to as copied by another person, all the authorities cited in this edition, including the publications of Dr. von Lemm, have been collated by the editor.

Of Papyrus four large practically continuous amounts of text have recently come to light, though one of them had been preserved with sufficient accuracy by the copy of Des Rivières, accessible in the Library of Munich. These papyri were not rolls but books, and are written in a bold upright regular hand not resembling the Greek writing of the fourth century to which some of the Sahidic parchment approximates: g has earlier forms and apparently two different hands. The fragment published by Pistelli and ascribed by him to the fifth or sixth century leans forward and joins some of the letters, being evidently less formal in appearance. Brit. Mus. 955 (e), which ought to have been classed with lectionaries, is like nearly the latest form of the writing on parchment of the eleventh century.

By far the largest amount of text is written on Parchment dating perhaps from the fifth to the fourteenth century. Only one date occurs in the whole body of the fragments and this is A.D. 985 (A.MART. 701), in the homiletic work lately acquired by the British Museum containing the Praise of S John the Baptist.

In dealing with this formidable collection of fragmentary documents a rough threefold classification may be employed depending upon some very obvious features of writing and form of page. Class i contains chiefly the smaller pages of text and usually smaller regular writing with the earlier form of the \mathcal{M} and Υ , and may be dated from the earliest time to the eighth century. Class ii embraces the fragments of the largest size and large regular writing with the forms \mathfrak{u} and τ of the ninth and tenth century, while Class iii, with large pages except where a single column is used, shows a later development into a tall compressed and less regular writing. This rough threefold division is marked in the Register by space left between fragments 21 and a, 69 and 70.

THE CENTURY NUMBER FOLLOWS EACH FRAGMENT, AND B MEANS A PHOTOGRAPH IN BALESTRI'S EDITION.

Class i: 1, initials small and clear of the text, V. 2, initials small and half in the text, a red section mark is seen and there are red citation marks, V. 3, page numbers $\mathfrak{u}\mathfrak{u}$ $\mathfrak{u}\mathfrak{o}$, punctuating point placed high or even above the letters, V. 6, initials scarcely larger than text and just projecting from it, section mark slightly ornamented, VI. 7, writing rather irregular and leaning forward, point placed high, VI. 8, B page numbers, ruling punctures between the columns, four forms of section mark varying from a simple horizontal line to elaborate colourless ornament, the horizontal lines of letters project into the margin, initials not larger than text are half marginal, VII. 9, page numbers, initial, small and clear of text, ornament of two kinds well and also roughly drawn and both coloured pink and green, VII. 10, horizontals of letters projecting into margin, initials same size as text and clear of it, colourless rough ornament, probably a later but not much later addition, a few corrections occur, VII. 11, page numbers ornamented with many little lines, punctures between the columns, horizontals of letters project remarkably, initials scarcely larger and not clear of text, slight coloured ornament. The Louvre fragment recently found continues the text, VII. 13, B large page with numbers and intercolumnar punctures, initials rare but of two sizes, very elaborate colourless ornament, VIII. 14, large page stained bright yellow, initials small and not clear of text, delicate coloured ornament, liturgical notes $\sigma\omega\rho\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\mu\mu\alpha\ \sigma\omega\mu\epsilon\ \sigma\upsilon\ \epsilon\tau\epsilon\chi\eta\sigma\iota\omicron$ 'stay here, take up again at the sixth', and $\sigma\omega\rho\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\mu\mu\alpha\ \sigma\omega\mu\epsilon\ \sigma\upsilon\ \mu\mu\mu\alpha$, VIII. 15, large page, initials small and partly in text, brightly coloured ornament with peculiar forms, VIII. 16, large page, section mark with slight ornament, initials not clear of text, appears to be an imitation of the earlier writing and not earlier than XI. 17, section mark with slight ornament, initials small, IX. 18, large page, initials small and clear of text, delicate colourless ornament, IX.

20, B rough imitation of the earlier writing, with coarse colouring, initials of three kinds, elaborate quire headings, liturgical notes and remains of a prayer in Greek beginning [παντοκ]ρατωρ εποῖνε οὐτ̃ and referring to παιακην αμαρτολον, probably of the twelfth or thirteenth century. At John vi is the titulus ετ̃ηε πωεικ απωνε 'concerning the bread of the life', at xi ετ̃ηε λαζαρος. At the end of John are Greek lections which suggest an earlier date than XII. 21, small fragments contained in a cardboard box and copied by Winstedt, probably earlier than the eighth century. 22, two kinds of writing, one an imitation of the earlier forms and the other of Class ii, very slight ornament at the initials which are nearly clear of the text, X. 24, section marks but no initials nor any ornament, VIII. 25, 26, small page with large writing of early forms, VII. 28, small writing, very regular, VI. These fragments 25, 26, 28 should have received a higher place in Class i, but the earlier numbers were already occupied.

Class ii: α, this bilingual fragment has both earlier and later forms, small initials partly in text with section mark. β, B earlier and later forms, initials and section marks appear in the Greek only. 30, small page with small delicate writing. The text ends at the end of the 12th chapter of Mark, and after three dotted lines is written тпне мпхωаме не мааѣ ꙗсоот ꙗсон хωри 'παρηνος', another dotted line and the cryptogram ονλκκωχολωζζζωψλγ = αποκ παλος μα ματοι 'I Paulos (at the) place of soldiers' (cf. 122 Rylands Catalogue). 31, small page with single column, initials clear of text with trace of colourless ornament. 32, small page, small initials clear of text, and section mark. 33, small page with single column, one small initial. 34, small page, initials not larger than the text. 36, small page, well drawn colourless ornament at initials. These eight fragments may be referred to VII or an earlier century on account of their small size and character of writing, though in form of letters belonging to Class ii. γ, bilingual, of which the Greek is sometimes accented, small page, small initials clear of text, but the writing larger and to be assigned to VIII. δ, bilingual, large page numbered as usual, and one quire number remains, section marks, VIII. ε, bilingual, quire number, slight uncoloured ornament, IX. 37, large page of large and beautiful writing, section numbers occur, and the Ammonian sections and Eusebian canons are written in black and red with small graceful ornament. The following tituli are written in red with green ornament in the upper margin: (Matt. ii) ѣ ετ̃ηε ꙗшнре шнм етагροћот 'concerning the young children who were killed', (Matt. iv) ⲁ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲧⲉⲥⲏⲧ ⲙⲡⲉⲛⲥⲱⲧⲓⲣ 'concerning the preparation of our Saviour', (Matt. v) ⲉ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲙⲙⲁⲕⲁⲣⲓⲥⲙⲟⲥ 'concerning the beatitudes', Luke 17, (Matt. ix) ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲓ ⲉⲧⲟ ⲡⲓⲁⲙⲙⲟⲛⲓⲟⲛ 'concerning the demoniac', (Matt. xxvi) ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲧⲟⲡⲓⲡⲁⲣⲁⲗⲓⲁⲟⲧ ⲡⲓⲥ 'concerning the betrayal of Jesus', and the corresponding sections of Mark ⲙ and Luke ⲟⲛ are given in red, (Luke iii) ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲉⲛⲧⲁⲧⲱⲡⲉ ⲓⲱⲗⲁⲛⲛⲓⲥ 'concerning those who asked Iohannes', ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲡⲉⲓⲣⲁⲥⲙⲟⲥ ⲙⲡⲥⲱⲧⲓⲣ 'concerning the temptation of the Saviour', (Luke iv) ⲡ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲉⲧⲉⲣⲉ ⲡⲉⲡⲓⲁ ⲡⲁⲗⲙⲟⲛⲓⲟⲛ ⲑⲓⲱⲱⲥ 'concerning him who had the demon spirit', with the corresponding section of Mark ⲁ, ⲟ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲧⲱⲱⲙⲉ ⲙⲡⲉⲧⲣⲟⲥ 'concerning the mother-in-law of Petros', Matt. ⲟ Mark ⲕ, ⲓ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲉⲛⲧⲁⲧⲱⲗⲟ ⲑⲡⲓ ⲑⲉⲡⲱⲱⲡⲉ ⲉⲧⲱⲟⲩⲉ 'concerning those who were cured of various sicknesses', Matt. ⲟ Mark ⲅ, ⲓⲉ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲉⲧⲥⲟⲗⲉⲛ ⲉⲡⲧⲁⲥⲗⲟ 'concerning the leper who was cured', Matt. ⲅ Mark ⲁ, (Luke v) ⲓⲥ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲉⲧⲥⲏⲥ 'concerning him who is paralysed', Matt. ⲓⲥ Mark ⲉ, ⲓⲁ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲗⲉⲧⲉⲓ ⲡⲧⲉⲗⲱⲛⲓⲥ 'concerning Levei the publican', Matt. ⲓⲁ Mark ⲅ, (Luke vi) ⲓⲉ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲉⲧⲉⲣⲉ ⲧⲉⲥⲱⲧⲓⲣ ⲱⲧⲱⲱⲧ 'concerning him whose hand is dried up', Matt. ⲕⲁ Mark ⲗ, ⲓⲥ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲥⲱⲧⲡⲓ ⲡⲓⲁⲡⲟⲥⲧⲟⲗⲟⲥ 'concerning the choosing of the apostles', Matt. ⲓⲟ Mark ⲛ, ⲓⲗ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲙⲙⲁⲕⲁⲣⲓⲥⲙⲟⲥ 'concerning the beatitudes', Matt. ⲉ, (John xii) ⲓⲁ ⲉⲧⲏⲉ (ⲧ)ⲉⲱ ⲙⲡⲓ ⲡⲉⲛⲥ 'concerning the ass and the foal', Matt. ⲙⲉ Mark ⲗⲕ Luke ⲗⲛ, ⲉⲧⲏⲉ ⲡⲟⲧⲉⲓⲉⲙⲡⲓ [ⲉⲛⲧⲁⲧ]ⲉⲓ ⲉⲣⲟⲥ 'concerning the Greeks who came to him'. The Greek section numbers occur in John, VIII. 38, thick, close and regular writing with small initials clear of text, section numbers, colourless ornament with curious combined forms, VIII. 41, ornament peculiar, coloured pink and green, page numbers with many small lines, elaborate coloured dotted lines at the end and beginning of the Gospels, but there seems no heading to John, VIII. 44, 50, B elaborate coloured ornament at the quires with vase and combined forms and interlacing work. 50, has the remains of the heading of Luke written in an unformal hand. Before this came the ordinary long ending of Mark which contributes two letters to the imperfect text of the sixteenth chapter and supplies negative evidence against the shorter ending as alternative. 51, B, X. 52, B section numbers were added by later hand, one may be original, IX. 53, a few corrections occur in Luke, X. 55, section numbers, X. 57, section numbers by a later hand, X. ζ, small fragment of early writing with later forms to be classed with α and β, VII. 64, one folio was published by von Lemm in Mélanges Asiatiques, t. x, 1889, p. 85, X. 66, liturgical indications by later hand, X. 67, altered from 68 in Additions and Corrections, X.

68, evangelist's name is written in upper margin in large unformal hand, and a peculiar vase form occurs between the columns; cf. 44, 50, X.

Class iii: 69, titulus at John xi εἰς τὴν Λαζαροῦ 'concerning Lasaros'. 70, B μαθ, λοτ, ιωαν written in upper margin, section marks and numbers, slight ornament faintly coloured, X. 71, B coloured ornament roughly drawn, XIII. 72, section numbers, uncoloured ornament, both forms of ε compressed and broad, X. 73, B πκατα on one page, μαθασιον μαρκος λοτκας ιωαννου on the other respectively, systematically corrected throughout, titulus Matt. xxvi εἰς τὴν μυστηριον 'concerning the mystery', small writing on large page, ruling for every two lines. Luke iii εἰς τὴν πεντατ' απε ιωαννης 'concerning those who asked Iohannes', εἰς τὴν πετερε λεγεων ριωω 'concerning him who had legion', εἰς τὴν πᾶλλε 'concerning the blind man', εἰς τὴν ζαχαριος 'concerning Zakhaios', εἰς τὴν παμντε πμπα 'concerning him of the ten pounds', X. 74, section numbers, slight coloured ornament of peculiar form, X. 75, πκατα ιωαννης, X. 76, B, X. 77, κατα μαρκου, ιωαννου on both pages without κατα, section marks and numbers, εἰς τὴν πσαειν 'concerning the physicians', at foot of a page, X. 80, B section marks, section number and tituli, XI. 82, B, XI. 85, B later titulus εἰς τὴν πρεκατον-ταρχος 'concerning the centurion', εἰς τὴν στμωειν, ιδ εἰς τὴν πυνρε πτεχηρα 'concerning the son of the widow', κ εἰς τὴν πεντατ'ιπποου-σου ριτ'ι ιωαννης 'concerning those who were sent by Iohannes', κδ εἰς τὴν τεπταστερε πχοεις πσοσι 'concerning her who anointed the Lord with ointment', κε εἰς τὴν παραβολη απετχο 'concerning the parable of the sower', κς εἰς τὴν τεπιτμια εροτη εμμοου πε-σοτε 'the rebuke against the waters', κζ εἰς τὴν πετερε ονλετιων ριωω 'concerning him who had a legion', κς εἰς τὴν τυεερε απарχι-ствагωгос 'concerning the daughter of the ruler of the synagogue', κς εἰς τὴν τεтере песноу гаро 'concerning her who had the issue of blood', κς εἰς τὴν τσινтпкоот απμнтспоотс 'concerning the sending of the twelve', λ εἰς τὴν τσινψῆтῃ πις 'concerning the transfiguration of Jesus', λδ εἰς τὴν петгитε 'concerning him who is convulsed', πη εἰς τὴν ποикопомос απχινсонс 'concerning the steward of the iniquity', ξ εἰς τὴν πμнт πρωме етсoнг 'concerning the ten leprous men', XI. 86, B πκατα ιωαννου, section numbers, XI. 89, B πκατα λοτκας, later section numbers, tituli at foot of page without section numbers, εἰς τὴν οе пшлнл 'concerning how to pray', εἰς τὴν πεпта теуχора отωале 'concerning him whose country was fertile', εἰς τὴν тѣω πкпте 'concerning the fig-tree', εἰς τὴν петсωтп пав пμпа Bodleian Hunt. 3 is a paper lectionary of the months Athor, Mshir, and of Paskha, i. e. Lent. It contains rough Arabic beginnings of lections, and is probably of XIII. Hunt. 4, XIV, is a paper fragment of John, numbered for the leaves like Bohairic MSS., giving occasionally the Ammonian sections and canons. Hunt. 5, Paraskeve lections, rubrics in Coptic and Arabic, foliated, section numbers, e.g. Mark xiv 66 αζ which is rightly repeated at xv 1 and 6, он again is right for lections beginning Luke xxii 47, 56, 66, then οε follows correctly for xxiii 11, and лθ is the right Sahidic number for John xix 1, XIII.

Vatican 90 has a lection from Luke which is found copied exactly among the Munich fragments of Des Rivières (Munich 8). 99 is a complete volume with lectionary for Holy Week in Sahidic and Arabic and worthy of publication, though not earlier than XIII.

Of the other lectionary fragments 1¹ and 2¹ are probably IX, α¹-9¹ X, 10¹-27¹ XI, 30¹-36¹ XII, 40¹-h¹ XIII, 46¹-o XIV.

Amongst the individuals of Class iii little attention has been called to phenomena of initial letters and ornament or the numbering of pages. Probably all the MSS. of this and Class ii had numbers on every page and quire numbers in regular course. Comparatively very few fragments have preserved a quire number and still fewer any ornamental treatment of last and first page of the quire. In these later fragments at least two kinds of initials appear and the Apparatus records the two kinds with sufficient accuracy by means of the signs § and P. Ornament is often attached to the initials and a characteristic sameness in colour and form prevails. Compared with the Bohairic it is smaller in design, and interlacing work is less common, but in a very few instances far greater spirit and invention is shown, though hardly any attempt at representing the scenes described occurs as in the great parchment MS. of the National Library and the smaller paper volume in the Institut Catholique of Paris, nor any imitation of the Byzantine pictures of the Evangelists which are found in the MSS. of Paris and Cairo.

In reference to papyrus g the following particulars may be of some interest. The editor was told at Munich that the originals of Des Rivières' copy preserved in the Library had been destroyed in the bombardment of Alexandria. On returning to England, by the kind suggestion of Mr. Leatham, of Miserden Park, Gloucestershire, he found them in the possession of Henry Martyn Kennard, Esq., well known as a collector of Egyptian antiquities. The papyrus had been obtained from a foreman of the Engineering Company which undertook the recent improvement of the harbour of Alexandria. It is very gratifying to be able to add that, since the printing of these Notes, the public-spirited owner has presented the fragments, together with a much larger number of non-Biblical pieces, to the British Museum.

The number of fragments may be reckoned as follows: for Matthew 187, Lectionaries 35; Mark 76, Lectionaries 17; Luke 152, Lectionaries 42; John 210, Lectionaries 32, giving a total of 751. The papyrus passages are included in these figures, but are not reckoned according to each fragment: the passages in each gospel are reckoned as one for each indicating Gothic letter.

Of the whole body of fragments, Nos. 8, 13, 14, 21, 37, 73, 108, 110, 114, a¹, 6¹, 26¹, b¹, f¹, g¹, m¹ give text from all the four gospels; while Nos. g, 9, 18, 20, 50, 64, 70, 86, 91, 109, 4¹, 13¹, 19¹, 33¹, 48¹, 1¹ give text from three.

As regards the amount of consecutive text in each supposed MS., No. 111 has the whole of Matthew xi-xxvi, Luke v (vi); No. 91 Luke ix-xvi, xviii-xxii (xxiv), John ii-vii; No. 114 Mark iii-viii, Luke vi, vii, xiii (xvii), (xviii), xix-xxiii; No. 8 Matthew i-iii, xvii-xix, xxv, Mark vii, Luke vii, viii; No. 86 Matthew xi, xii, Luke v, vi, John viii, ix; No. 9 Matthew xi, xxv, Luke iv, xx (xxi); No. 20 John x, xi, xv, xix (xx); No. 37 Matthew iii, iv, Luke iv, v; No. 64 Matthew ii (iii), Mark vii, viii; No. 71 Matthew viii, ix, xii, xiii; No. 73 Mark ii, xii-xiv; No. 85 Luke vii, viii, John xv, xvi; No. 95 John (xiii), xiv, xvii, xviii; No. 120 Mark x-xiii; No. 43 John iii, viii, ix; No. 70 Matthew xix, xx, xxiv; No. 110 John x-xii. N. B. Brackets imply the loss of one verse. Nos. 13, 50, 55, 57, 74, 89, 90 have two chapters; and Nos. 11, 14, 15, δ , 40, 108, 119, 129, 130, 132, 133, m^1 have one chapter.

Fragments which reached the editor after the Apparatus was printed have been duly recorded among the Additions, where will be found an indication of the verses which they contain.

ESTIMATE OF THE VERSION

Two general observations may be made in regard to the whole body of fragments. The first is the freedom from corrections and the consistency of the orthography of individual MSS. As noticed above, only one MS. appears to have been extensively corrected. The second observation is the unanimity of the readings. Variants appear, as is only natural in so large a number of MSS. of different dates, but these variants are few, and their scarcity may be connected with the fact that so many of the fragments have come from the same place, the White Monastery.

To give an illustration of this unanimity of readings, if we take the Delectus drawn up in the Appendices ad Novum Testamentum Stephanicum under the supervision of Dr. Sanday, only three fluctuations will be noticed among fifty-four readings in Matthew; three also among the twenty-two in Mark; none at all among thirty readings in Luke; and only one among thirty-five in John. This singular unanimity must be qualified by the comparative paucity of fragments for each passage, twelve being the highest number, and this number occurs only twice among these selected readings: but one of the appearances of twelve MSS. happens in John vii. 53, where all the fragments omit that verse and the following eleven verses of chapter viii. Strangely enough some words of this passage have been found written in Sahidic upon a stone 'ostrakon' in the British Museum and published in the catalogue by Mr. Hall, who made this interesting discovery.

In estimating the character of the Version the following figures will give some idea of the position which it holds. They have been compiled by the editor during correction of proofs, and do not refer to variation of particles. Beside them, under the head of 'miscellaneous', were collected the readings of other early uncials and cursives when varying alone or in company with few MSS.; and also the readings of the other versions, when variant, amounting to 1,478; and finally under 'S' were numbered 1,262 readings of Sahidic alone. This should be noticed, because otherwise the figures below will seem too few.

In Matthew, agreeing with the Sahidic, 1,206 readings are classed as those of the great majority of later Greek MSS., 211 are of the earliest mixture \aleph B alone or small groups containing \aleph B, 73 belong to D alone or with a few other authorities, and 20 to the Old Latin, \aleph practically alone has 51, B 46, C 21, L 23.

In Mark 1,467 for later as against 236 of earliest groups, 130 for D, 31 for Old Latin, 47 for \aleph and B each, 11 for C, and 5 for L.

In Luke 2,524 for later as against 296 of earliest groups, D 215, 54 Old Latin, 63 \aleph , 70 B, 15 C, and 14 L.

In John 1,644 of later, 141 of earliest groups, 87 D, 42 Old Latin, 85 \aleph , 61 B, 7 C, and 16 for L.

These figures confirm the latest estimate of the Version, as agreeing with the Bohairic in its Neutral tendency. They also reduce the evidence for Western influence, though the marked preponderance of D readings in all the Gospels maintains that influence, of which the most prominent instance in the Sahidic is the description of the stone, rolled to the door of the sepulchre in the narrative of Luke, where however four variations of the words are seen, none of them agreeing exactly with the reading of the only other authorities D and Old Latin c. No other peculiar addition of D or other Western document is found, and D readings which are not Sahidic occur in great abundance. The advantage of readings of \aleph over B points in the same Western direction, while the absence of peculiar L readings removes any idea of late Alexandrian tendency, although the probable Sahidic ending of Mark given by 108 makes a conspicuous exception in favour of L.

From the same arrangement of the various authorities a further set of figures has been drawn up. In this set the number of times in which \aleph B and \aleph B groups agree with both Sahidic and Bohairic is 786; and the number in which they disagree 374. SB agree with Bohairic alone 191 times and SB with Sahidic alone 171. For each Gospel the figures are: Matthew 165, Mark 201, Luke 220, John 100 when SB agree with SahBo; Matthew 93, Mark 57, Luke 141, John 83 when they disagree. Then when SB agree with Bohairic alone: Matthew 26, Mark 66, Luke 74, John 25; and when SB agree with Sahidic alone: Matthew 40, Mark 29, Luke 59, John 43. Here the gross figure of Bohairic agreement with the Neutral readings is larger than that of the Sahidic, but in the separate figures the superiority is not so decisively maintained, Matthew and John giving a large superiority for agreement of Sahidic with SB. The figures for agreement of SB with SahBo in each Gospel mark again the early Alexandrian character of both versions, the ratio appearing highest in Mark, 201 against 57 for absence of SahBo from SB, John showing only a small difference. In Luke the difference between Sahidic and Bohairic is the least, in Mark the greatest; in Matthew and John the proportion is nearly the same, Sahidic being nearer SB by two to one. The Gospel of John was the more popular in Egypt and might therefore become assimilated to the later Greek MSS., perhaps also to earlier assimilation is due the comparatively small difference between the figures (100 and 83) which denote agreement and disagreement of SB with SahBo.

Taking another means of testing the Version, among the selected readings discussed by Westcott and Hort in their Introduction, and of which the greater number represent a division between Western and Neutral readings, 48 are taken from Matthew. Of these only one in the Sahidic is simply Western, viz. the name Gerasenes, which is the reading of both the fragments containing the verse, against Gadarenes or the Bohairic Gergesenes. The other 13 are chiefly Western and Syrian, 3 Syrian and 2 pre-Syrian. In 4 only do the fragments vary: the late lectionary f¹ omits behind me in iv. 10, 111 has works instead of children in xi. 19, 111 and 119 read Jesus the Christ in xvi. 21, and the earlier fragments, 50, 52, and 80, put the recusant son last, and give the answer the last instead of the first, which is the reading of 18, 111, and 112, fragments of probably later MSS., which put the recusant son first. The large majority of the Sahidic agree with the Bohairic in their support of the Neutral readings.

Mark supplies 47 readings, in which the Sahidic varies from the Neutral in eight cases, and twice only shows division of testimony. In xiv. 68 the interesting 73 and 108 with 127 give the Neutral reading; and in vii. 4 there are three Sahidic variations of the reading καὶ κλιῶν. In no case does a purely Western form occur in the Version among these readings of the second Gospel.

Of the 65 readings selected from Luke, in ix. 37, one of the three MSS., 129, omits on the same day, which is the peculiar reading of the other two; and all the six MSS. have covered for burning in xxiv. 32, supporting the Western reading; 91 has the addition and thus it must be in xxiv. 46 against the two other MSS. which confirm the Neutral omission; but with these three exceptions in all the other selected places the Sahidic agrees continually with the Neutral reading.

In 40 readings taken from John, 11 of the Sahidic vary from the Neutral, and 6 have the Western form, though one of these, given, in vii. 39, is paraphrased on account of the difficulty of expressing the passive. Two combinations of readings occur at i. 18 and i. 34: God the only Son and the Son the chosen, but in no case is there any fluctuation of the Sahidic MSS., which are sufficiently numerous in most of the chapters of John.

From this investigation of these selected readings the same result as before is obtained. The Western readings have a decided but slight superiority of number over other variants, while the main stream is Neutral, and this, now regarded as the early Alexandrian form, exhibited by the Bohairic, maintains itself even more firmly in the Sahidic. Further, the large numbers of Western readings given in those selected by Westcott and Hort make the case more significant even though those authors have omitted the description of the stone of the sepulchre, sufficiently remarkable among the twelve greater Western interpolations.

Publication of the whole of the Gospels and the ascertainment of the readings of MSS., often amounting to a respectable number, will not materially alter the opinion about the Version and the relation of the Sahidic to the Bohairic which the writer in the Encyclopedia Biblica iv. 5008-10 has expressed.

As for the Sahidic MSS. themselves, the fragments are seldom long enough to determine satisfactorily the real character of the entire documents, and the longest are naturally the more recent. If longer and earlier fragments are discovered greater diversity may appear, but at present there is not much sign of variation. Matthew 111 and the lectionary m¹ seem to have a slightly different vocabulary from the rest: thus 111 reads ετϣοοп ηαϣ for ετῆταϣ, ατειϣοϣ for αηϣοϣ, ατ̄ρ for ατει, ηερρο for ηκαρ, ετταλσητ for ετοτοϣ joined in this last case by 73, ταμε for ϣοοϣ; m¹ ϣηηαι for ἡτειρε, αποτ for ϣω. 73, 111, 134 and m¹ show signs of conforming to the Bohairic, and 111 of conforming to the Greek as in Matthew xiii. 15, 17, 27 and xxi. 4. It has been observed that the Bohairic group DΔE &c. give special support to the Sahidic in Matthew, but this tendency is not maintained in Mark. The Bohairic MS. M, which is known to have been brought from the Monastery of St. Anthony in the Eastern Desert, bears trace of Sahidic influence, as also r now in the Library of the Patriarch at Cairo, but probably written by the same scribe as the MS. of the Epistles and Acts which still reposes on the shelf of a Sahidic Library in Dair al Muharraq. The peculiarities also of Bohairic F and K sometimes suggest Sahidic affinity.

THE DATE OF THE VERSION

According to the opinion of Harnack expressed in the second edition of his Expansion of Christianity no trustworthy information concerning the origin of the religion of Christ in Egypt exists; though he remarks that the traditional list of the Patriarchs of Alexandria ought not to be lightly disregarded.

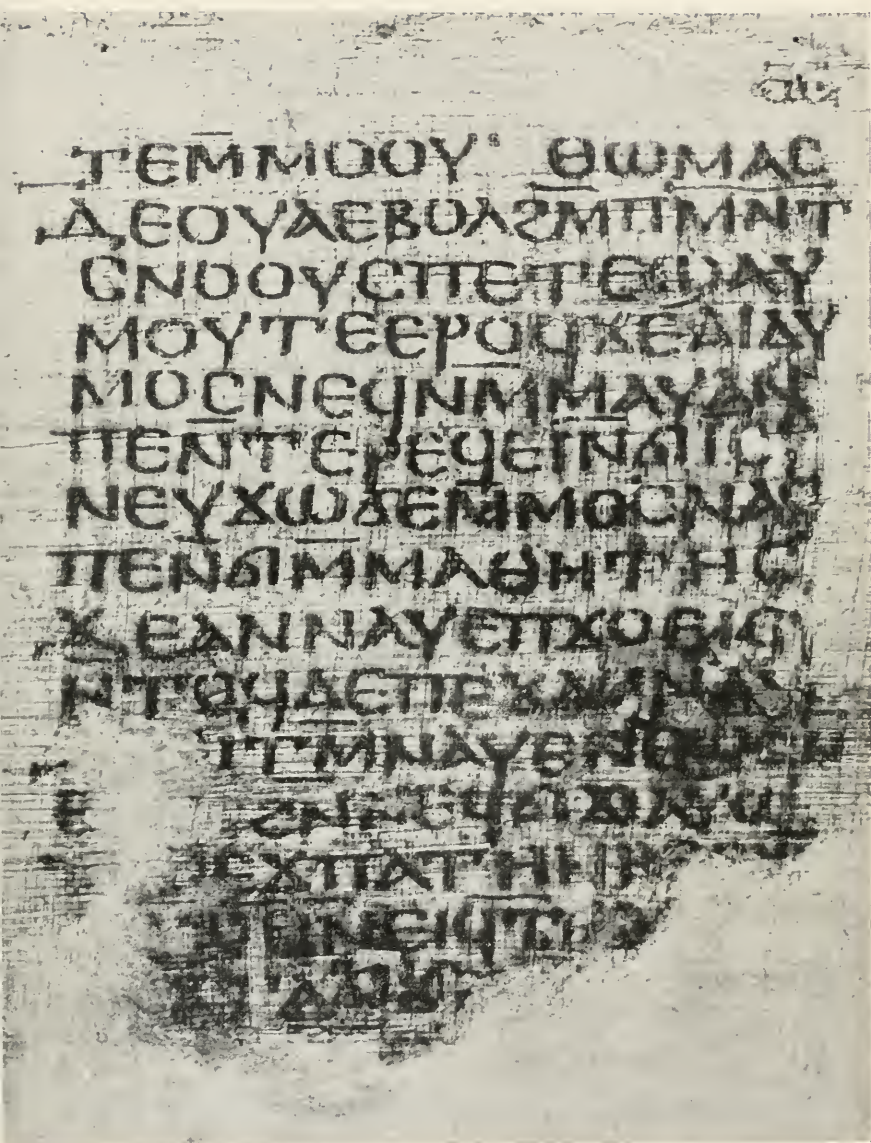

With the accession of Demetrius in A.D. 188 the real history of the Egyptian Church may be said to begin. During his long patriarchate he appointed four bishops, and his successor Heraclas as many as twenty, which indicates a rapid progress of the Church. Clement of Alexandria, born about A.D. 150, speaks of the Christians spreading over all the land, and while Origen in his discussion with Celsus admits that the number of Christians was small in the early part of the third century, yet there were enough to persecute under the rule of Decius in A.D. 250.

Considering the ease with which some of the ancient Egyptian beliefs might be adapted to the creed and teaching of Christians, and that there was probably an heretical Gospel of the Egyptians in the second century, we can hardly deny the likelihood of an early propagation of the faith. If with Harnack, relying on Leipoldt, 'we may conjecture, though we cannot prove, that the Sahidic Version partly goes back to the third century', there seems some reason for supposing that need of a vernacular Version arose as early as the time of Demetrius.

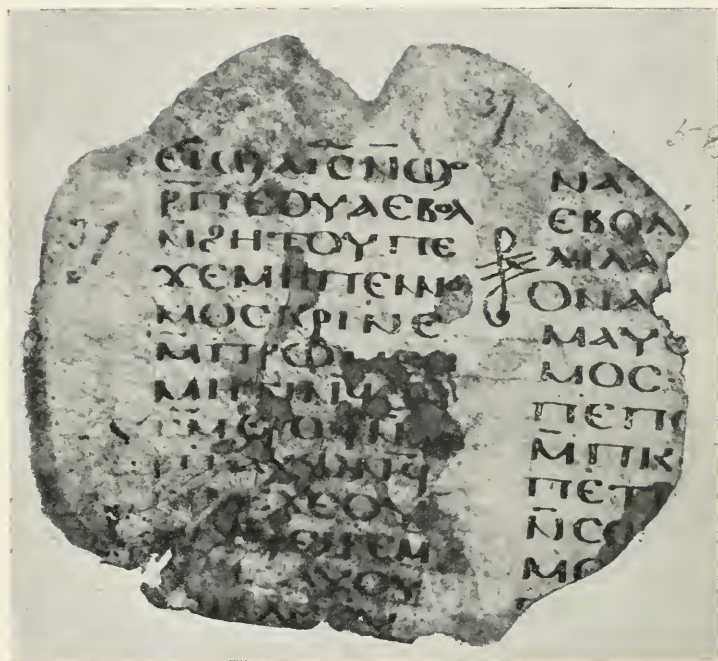

Where history fails us, the internal character of the Sahidic supplies confirmation of a date earlier than the third century. Being fundamentally of the older Alexandrian type, yet bearing signs of mixture from one or more sources, we can imagine the Version as of a form of text which, diverging from the main stream, retained variations belonging to the earliest times, such as are known by the name of Western readings. These it preserved, and adopted afterwards some of the readings which are usually regarded as due to a later Syrian revision.

This theory does not preclude the translation of the Greek having taken place as late as the third century, but the traces of early mixture shown by the definite tinge of Western influence can hardly be explained except by reference to a date as early as possible. If Christianity did not exist at all in Upper Egypt before A.D. 150, then we must come down to the date of Demetrius as the earliest possible date of the Version ; but if, as is more likely, the Christian religion had spread by means of the Nile immediately after it began to be preached in Alexandria, and had already become infected by heretical and semi-pagan superstitions in the second century, we may provisionally conclude from the character of the Sahidic Version that it was made at that time.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

DR. H. FORD, Professor of Arabic at Oxford, published in 1799 the fragments of the Pauline Epistles collected by Woide, consisting of a few verses from all except Philippians, 2 Thessalonians, Titus, and Philemon. Shortly before, in 1789, M. F. Münter at Copenhagen had given verses from the Epistles to Timothy, in his work upon the nature of the Sahidic dialect: in 1810 Zoega published Ephesians v. 21-33 in his Catalogus, and in 1811 Engelbreth printed a few passages also from the Borgian collection.

No effort was made after this beginning until 1885, when Maspero published fragments of the Epistles of St. Paul, and about the same time Amélineau contributed to periodicals a large amount of text, derived from Rome and from the Crawford fragments formerly belonging to Archdeacon Tattam, which are now in the John Rylands library at Manchester. Dr. Oscar von Lemm in St. Petersburg, Dr. Leipoldt in Berlin, and Professor Boeser in Leyden also printed and lithographed a small quantity of text. Then in 1904 Padre Balestri, taking up the work of Cardinal Ciasca in Rome, produced as far as possible a continuous text from the Borgian fragments, appending thereto variant reading of all the other fragments in the same collection. This important work greatly assisted the present editor, who, after collating the fragments again, can vouch for the accuracy of the Vatican publication.

Large lacunae, however, still remained to be supplied: nine chapters of 2 Corinthians were absent, two from Galatians, the second of 2 Timothy; and seven were wanting in Hebrews. Before visiting Rome the editor had collated all the fragments of the Bibliothèque Nationale in Paris, where they had been catalogued provisionally but not published by Amélineau. The editor also collated a small number in the Louvre and at Naples, these last partly from photographs lent by Professor Hyvernât, of Washington, further a few from the Patriarchate library in Cairo, and finally the fragments of the British Museum hitherto unpublished were added to supply the lacunae. Attempt was made to obtain photographs of the Morgan collection in America, which is reported to contain the entire text of the Pauline Epistles; but the request of the Clarendon Press was not granted; and the war soon put an end to all printing of unremunerative work. Fortunately Dr. Wessely, of Vienna, had just published his lithograph edition of the Archduke Rainer's Sahidic New Testament fragments, which the editor was not permitted to collate in 1905; and by this means many small lacunae were filled up through the kindness of Sir Herbert Thompson, who with prescient promptness secured the publication, and allowed the editor to collate the text.

When the war had delayed the Press from printing, it had also arrested the supply of material for the publication of Egyptian research supported by a fund recently begun by Dr. Griffith, Reader of Egyptian at Oxford. Through Dr. Alan Gardiner this fund was found able to give a subsidy to the Press, and, notwithstanding the still fragmentary condition of the text, it was thought good to commence printing in 1917, though the Epistle to the Romans still lacked 81 imperfect or missing verses, 1 Corinthians 101, 2 Corinthians 99, Hebrews 36, Colossians 2, 1 Thessalonians 1, 2 Thessalonians 2, 1 Timothy 1, 2 Timothy 8, Titus 7, and Philemon 3 verses, beside a few more verses slightly imperfect, of which the text is practically complete.

Christ died. ¹⁶ Let not our good [therefore] be blasphemed. ¹⁷ For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking; but (α) it is righteousness, and peace, and joy in the holy spirit. ¹⁸ For he who in this is serving the Christ, is pleasing to God, and is a chosen (one) to the men. ¹⁹ So therefore let us follow after the (things) of the peace, and the (things) of the edifying one another. ²⁰ Because of food destroy not the work of God.
